Scientific and Specialty Atlases and Books

Atlas k puteshestviiu vokrug sveta kapitana Kruzenshterna

21-04-005 | $550.00 | PURCHASE

Atlas k puteshestviiu vokrug sveta kapitana Kruzenshterna

Paulsen, Russia. Hardcover. 192 pages.
ISBN 9785987972663. In English & Russian. 2021.

Released on the 250th anniversary of the birth of the outstanding navigator Ivan Fedorovich Kruzenshtern and to the 175th anniversary of the Russian Geographical Society. This book presents the reader with scientific, research and pictorial-graphic work done by the participants of the first Russian circumnavigation of the world. The Atlas of the First Tour of the World is the largest publication of Russian engravings of the early 19th century and still remains one of the most valuable iconographic sources in the field of ethnography.

Kruzenshtern personally worked on the publication of the original atlas. Published copies in Russian and foreign collections have a different number of engravings, their sequence, numbering and signatures. In the presented edition, all available color images (and this is a rarity) are determined in a reference order, descriptions of each illustration are given, the creators of drawings and engravings are referenced from a variety of existing atlas copies and related literature. A large amount of additional materials are also included in this work: articles about I.F. Kruzenshtern and the first Russian voyage around the world, about the cartographic heritage of the expedition and about the original atlas itself, its foreign editions and the history of creation.

L'atlas des frontieres : murs, conflits, migrations

Les Arènes, France. Softcover. 175 pages.
ISBN 9782352046486. In French. 2021.

The migrant crisis, Brexit, a chain conflicts in the Middle East, tensions in Asia, walls between Mexico and the United States: the question of borders is present now more than ever. But do we really know what a border is? There are borders that are easily crossed and others are impassable, there are visible and invisible borders, there are political, economic and cultural boundaries, etc. This first atlas on borders helps to better understand the issues behind these lines that separate or connect people. With more than forty maps and infographics previously unpublished, Bruno Tertrais and Delphine Papin show the world today through the prism of its borders.

Atlas Afrique AFD : pour un autre regard sur le continent

Armand Colin, France. Softcover. 126 pages.
ISBN 9782200628772. In French. 2020.

Through a hundred maps and charts, the result of unprecedented data collection and aggregation, the challenges, paradoxes and perspectives of a continent where, for many observers, are presented in a concrete way. will play a large part of the destiny of mankind. Sometimes fantasized, sometimes feared, Africa remains an unknown continent and, too often still, caricatured. Yet this space, which will host a third of the world's population in barely a generation, has undergone social, economic and environmental transformations in recent years of spectacular magnitude and rapidity. This atlas aims to take another look at Africa, closer to the field and its current events: that of a plural, dynamic continent which, in the face of its challenges, undertakes, innovates and already inspires the rest of the world.

Atlas des migrations en Mediterranee : de l'Antiquite a nos jours

Actes Sud, France. Hardcover. 283 pages.
ISBN 9782330145019. In French. 2021.

Through two hundred maps, illustrations, extracts from historical sources and summary texts written by more than seventy specialists, historians, geographers, anthropologists and political scientists, the Atlas of migration in the Mediterranean from Antiquity to our days shows how migration has shaped Mediterranean societies and cultures over the long term. It evokes the territories and structures which frame, control or support migration (roads, borders, ports, reception areas, political and legal frameworks), the various actors of mobility (merchants, workers, slaves, statesmen, exiles and banished, religious, intellectual, tourists or artists), before paying attention to the modalities of contact between migrants and societies.

Atlas historique de la Suisse - L'histoire suisse en cartes

Livreo-Alphil, France. Hardcover. 196 pages.
ISBN 9782889500574. In French. 2020.

For the first time, an atlas spans three millennia of Swiss history and brings together more than one hundred maps grouped into chapters, with short explanatory texts. For the first time also, Switzerland is not isolated from its multiple contexts but presented in continuity with neighboring regions for which identical information is offered. The variety of constantly recomposed territorial forms reminds us that Switzerland is not inscribed ready-made in time and space but that it has never ceased to be made, to undo and to recompose itself.

Any national history is a construction, but that of Switzerland is even more so, since the country has long remained an alliance of independent cantons, which individually or in common, controlled territories with different statutes, concluded alliances and treaties between cantons or with territories outside the federal alliance. Switzerland is also a puzzle of languages, cultures, religions, economies, territorial statutes which overlap and which evolve over time.

21-04-012 | $64.00 | PURCHASEState atlas of Goa

National Atlas & Thematic Mapping Organisation,
Department of Science & Technology, Government of India,
India. 82 pages. In English. 2018.

Royal Irish Academy, Ireland. Softcover. 28 pages.
ISBN 9781911479376. In English. 2021.

The story of the shaping of the present-day town is told through the atlas, where historic maps and views are presented on large-format loose sheets and are accompanied by a detailed text. This eagerly awaited publication represents several years of research, editing, and cartography and will see Dungarvan join over 530 towns and cities internationally that have been produced as part of the wider European Historic Towns Atlas scheme.

21-04-014 | $69.00 | PURCHASEStoria della cartografia in Italia dall'Unita a oggi : tra scienza, societa e progetti di potere

UTET Universita, Italy. Hardcover. 448 pages. Hardcover.
ISBN 9788860085580. In Italian. 2020.

Geographic maps are increasingly present in our daily life, from weather images to navigators' maps. However, its popularity does not affect the charm that allows us to evoke, at a simple glance, the places of our past and those where we dream of spending the next holidays. This book tells of the exceptional transformations undergone by the unification of Italy to today, dictated not only by technical progress but also by new cognitive needs, new intellectual needs, new aesthetic standards. Understanding paper as a social product, the book reveals the secrets of an apparently simple language but in reality rich in complexity, whose evolution deserves to be included within the - wider - of visual culture.
